Community chimes in on emergency plans

By SCOTT BORKGREN
Reporter

By the end of June, Converse County will hopefully have its first FEMA approved All Hazards Mitigation Plan.

Emergency Management Director Russ Dalgarn has been working on this project for the last two years. FEMA requires an AHMP to be updated every five years, but Converse County has never submitted a plan, let alone update one. Recently, Dalgarn and the county commissioners held open meetings to discuss residents concerns and thoughts about what the plan should cover.

Several ideas raised were: raise awareness on shelter and evacuation, implementing and enforcing city ordinances to restrict where hazardous materials are being hauled through town, expanded areas of defensible space, drill strategically placed deep water wells in rural converse county to fight fires and help in drought, educate about winter storm preparedness, install a back-up generator and the senior center, enhance tree trimming programs near utility lines, install back-up power in Glenrock rec center.

About 24 people attended the meeting Jan. 19 to discuss the plan.

Dalgarn hopes to have a draft finalized and available on the Converse County website this spring before sending a final copy out in June.

Citizen Input Sought Through Survey

As part of the preparation of the city's 2008 budget, the city is seeking input from citizens. A survey is being conducted to gather information on how the city should spend its money. The survey is available online at www.ci.glenrock.wy.us and will be available until the end of the month. The survey is a key component of the city's budget process and will help the city make decisions about how to spend its money.

According to the city manager, the survey is a key component of the city's budget process. The survey will help the city make decisions about how to spend its money. The survey is available online at www.ci.glenrock.wy.us and will be available until the end of the month.
